ARDENT LOVER

Widow Brings Him Into Court.

His Visits Annoyed Her—A Tryst in Banana Patch Broken By Police.

"There is no fool like an old fool," said Judge Wilcox on Saturday morning while lecturing a too ardent lover, and warning him to allow that love to cool down, especially as it was not desired by the object of the man's affection. Further, the Judge warned the dejected suitor that it was poor policy to pester a widow with a bank account with loving epistles or by his presence, especially when she has forbidden him entrance to her house.

Senior Alva was brought before Judge Wilcox by a comely Portuguese widow, charged with disturbing her peace of mind and being found on her premises without leave. He was charged with vagrancy, the principal feature of the latter charge being embodied in his visit to the banana patch in the aforesaid widow's yard, where the lover had asked the unwilling widow to meet him between the lonely hours of 9 and 10 o'clock at night, where he desired to voice his undying love and affection for her.

On the witness stand was told a romantic story of love-lorn messages of affection and their cold reception; of visits to the house of the widow by the defendant, bearing to her presents and tokens, and all this done only for the sake of the widow, and not for her property and bank account. Senior Alva began his attentions some six months ago, when he suddenly appeared before the widow, who did not know him, making the excuse that in the earlier days their respective forefathers had resided on the same small island in the Atlantic near Portugal. He expressed a sympathy for her lonely state and expressed a hope that he would be invited often to bank in her smiles. For answer he was shown the open door.

Time and again he called, each appearance being accompanied by the proffer of a gift, and as often refused by the indignant widow. He persisted in showering broken bits of love upon the unwilling lady. If he did not appear in person, a substitute came in the shape of a missive couched in glowing terms of admiration, so characteristic of the Latin races. For months the ardent son of Portugal kept himself in the zenith of the widow's horizon until she sent a gentleman to her admirer, warning him that he was making a common nuisance of himself and something would be projected to make him uncomfortable if he made another visit.

Not a whit daunted by the warning, more missives were penned, many of them unsigned, urging her to listen to his suit. The last one was produced in court and caused merriment galore for the usual Police Court audience. Schoolboys have been known to pen wonderful love letters, but they were outshone by the dauntless wooer. It read in part: "Sweet rose of my heart, I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the pleasure you have given me in granting me even the privilege of gazing into your eyes. I could kiss your feet for joy, etc." He stated he did not wish to be seen talking with her in broad daylight, or where they could be interrupted, and named a tryst. "Between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening, among the banana which are before your house, I would speak with you without anybody knowing it. I beg for all your love to bear with me."

He was met at the tryst—not by the widow, but by a young man living in the house, armed with a pistol. A mounted policeman was also present and took the unfortunate lover in disgrace to the station house. Judge Wilcox soundly lectured Senior Alva for persisting in importuning the widow after so many warnings had been given him, and dismissed the defendant by threatening a possible term of imprisonment for six months if his peculiar offense were committed again.

MEN IN HARD LUCK.

Back From Quarantine With No Home or Money.

Seventeen well-dressed, respectable-looking laborers and seamen told a story of hard luck to the Board of Health yesterday afternoon. They were lodgers at Russian Frank's boarding-house until seventeen days ago, when his place was quarantined and the inmates carted with their effects to the camp at Kalihi. Their term of fifteen days' detention expired, they say, on Saturday, but for some reason they were kept until yesterday, when they were discharged to make the best of their way back to the city.

Archibald McIntyre, who made himself spokesman for the group, said last evening, "We saw Dr. Wood and asked him for aid. We are penniless and few have any place to go until work can be obtained. Besides our effects are at the camp. We could not carry them back in our arms and we have no money to send for them. The Board of Health took them to Kalihi, and I asked Dr. Wood to return them, so that we might have them if employment offered. He replied that he had no authority to do this and would not create a precedent."

"Wood told us that if we were penniless we could go back to the camp. That would be a hopeless step, for no one can get work from there. I think the majority of us would be satisfied if we could have our things transported to the center of the city. We could at least store them in some friendly lodging. Those of us who are seamen and who look for chances to ship, have to have their effects handy to accept the first opportunity turning up."

The Future of Children

A child's life may be blighted by the diseases of youth, such as Rickets, which is characterized by weak bones or crooked spine, and inability to stand or walk readily, or Marasmus, that wasting disease characterized by paleness and emaciation, or Scrofula, a constitutional disease of the glands and neck.

Scott's Emulsion

of pure Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda will prevent and cure these diseases. It supplies just the material needed to form strong bones, rich red blood and solid flesh. It will also reach the infant through the mother's milk, and be of the greatest benefit to both.
